What LanSchool does

We provide a comprehensive digital support system for education. Teachers can control what students see and focus on to guide classroom learning, promote shared experiences and make more of the time available.

Here's how LanSchool helps:

Improves class oversight

Thumbnail and full-screen monitoring make it easy to see what individuals are working on. So teachers can identify when a student may need additional assistance or encouragement to get back on track.

Gives control to educators

Teachers can blank every student's screen or display a custom message with the click of a button. This also locks their keyboard and mouse, so that teachers can quickly gather the attention of the classroom and control the rhythm of the learning environment.

Gets everyone on the same (web)page

Instantly launch the same website on every device in the classroom, eliminating the need to retype, correct or walk around to help students navigate to the correct URL.

Keeps students safe

Limited web browsing allows you to set approved websites through whitelisting. You can disable unwanted websites via blacklisting, or disable browsing when administering tests. LanSchool also provides reporting on student activity and keyword alerts to make student safety isn't compromised.

Supports unified learning

Teachers can send a message to the entire class, receive questions from students or chat with learners one-on-one through our comprehensive platform. Messaging allows educators to provide encouragement, give guidance or redirect students' focus.

Builds a collaborative environment

Our broadcast screen tool means teachers and students can share screens directly in real-time. The student or teacher maintains complete control of the screen and locks the other students' keyboards and mice as they engage. Teachers can share their screen as a resizable window so students can keep working while they watch.
